

STEMBA

Stemba is an early-stage women's health brand built on one belief: your biology is not your barrier. Starting with a distribution platform B2C for fertility and cycle health in Singapore, we bring the best femtech together, we curate and develop the products women can actually trust, cut through the noise with honest education, and show up with the voice of home, not a corporate one.

We are building the platform that women come to when they are overwhelmed, under-informed, and unsure where to turn for their health education and well being.

FOUNDER BIO

- Founder, Angel Investor, Mission-driven entrepreneur focused on women's economic independence and life-stage health
- Former Fintech Sales and GTM lead for start ups and fintechs in APAC. 22 years in sales and Fintech.
- Advocate for closing the women's health gap across Southeast Asia

Curating trusted women's health products across the full female starting with the Daisy fertility tracker, live in Singapore at SGD $449.

Currently in Phase 1 commercial launch in Singapore, with a clear multi-life-stage strategy spanning fertility, pregnancy, teen health, menstrual health, and menopause. Founder-led, mission-driven, and building trust before scale — with a roadmap to become the go-to women's health platform across Asia.

Stemba amplifies the McKinsey Health Institute and World Economic Forum finding that closing the women's health gap could unlock $1 trillion USD annually in economic productivity — and is building the platform that turns that data into action, one woman at a time.

FOUNDED IN 2023

HEADQUARTERS
Singapore

MARKET PRESENCE
Singapore

CATEGORY

Women's Health & FemTech

FUNDING STAGE
Pre-seed

COMPANY MISSION

To ensure biology never becomes a barrier to a woman's ambition, confidence, or independence — supporting women from puberty to menopause through products, education, and community.

Victoria Harverson
Founder

